WASHINGTON.

The Senate Holds an Executive Session.

The President Sends in Some Nominations.

Both Parties Have Caucuses After Adjournment.

A Renewal of the Cabinet Rumors.

THE EXECUTIVE SESSION.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—In the executive session of the senate no business was transacted other than to lay the nominations received from the president upon the table, to await reference to the appropriate committees when organized.

NEW NOMINATIONS.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate: Wm. W. Dudley, of Indiana, commissioner of pensions; Otis F. Clarke, of Rhode Island, first deputy commissioner of pensions; C. B. Walker, of Indiana, deputy commissioner of pensions; N. C. McFarland, of Kansas, commissioner of general land office; Charles H. Howard, of Illinois, Indian inspector; Addison Brown, of New York, United States district judge of the southern district of New York; George M. Duskin, of Alabama, attorney of the United States southern district of Alabama; Robert Foster, of Indiana, marshal of the United States district of Indiana; A. C. Phillips, of Arkansas, receiver of public moneys at Harrison, Arkansas; George H. Spencer, of Minnesota, Indian agent of the Crow Creek agency, Dakota; Augustus Brasens, of Pennsylvania, Indian agent of the Great Nemaha agency, Nebraska.

THE CAUCUSES.

Both democrats and republicans met in caucus this afternoon. The democrats discussed the committee question, and without agreeing on any definite plan of apportionment, merely decided to oppose the adoption of Edmunds' resolution. The republicans remained in session but a short time discussing the general situation and took no decided action on any particular question.

THE COMMITTEE VACANCIES.

Should the Edmunds resolution be adopted, Bayard will have power to fill vacancies in the committees of the last session, occasioned by the death of Burnside and the resignations of Conkling and Platt. Several important committees would thus be made democratic. Burnside was chairman and Conkling a member of the committee on foreign relations. Platt was on the finance committee, Burnside on the military, Conkling on the judiciary, Platt on the postoffice, Burnside on the education, Conkling on the engrossing bills. Bayard might assign new senators only to the three inferior committees and make the other three important democratic ones.

THE CHANCES OF DAVIS.

The talk in the republican caucus and by republican senators outside the caucus is not generally favorable to the proposition to elect Davis (Ills.) president of the senate and thus displace Bayard. The republicans appreciate the fact that they would be compelled to elect Davis without any pledge from him as to how he would vote on party questions, and prominent republican senators say he would as likely vote with the democrats as the republicans on such questions. A republican senator said this morning that he preferred Bayard to Davis because he knew just what to expect from Bayard, and that if President Arthur should die Bayard would naturally employ all the powers of his office while acting president to elect a democratic president of the United States and thus would unite the republican party, but Davis would probably adopt a middle or independent course. This senator said the republicans had no authoritative information whether Davis would accept the nomination or not and that should they nominate him and he vote against himself and thus defeat the movement it would be embarrassing. He expressed himself as in favor of letting Bayard alone until the republicans can elect one of their members. Bayard said that if the republicans nominate Davis he will move to elect him and thus put him under as much obligation to the democrats for his position as to the republican. Davis has informed a senator in friendly conversation most positively that he would not consent to the use of his name, and that he will vote against any proposition to change the presiding officer. It is more than probable that no effort will be made this session to displace Bayard. The republican senators are desirous of an early adjournment, and will not be likely to consume time in fighting over the presiding officer, unless they have a show of electing a republican.

Neither party has positively decided anything about the election of a secretary. The regular committee's indications are that only such as are necessary will be created, though the republicans will all support Edmunds' resolution, and should Davis vote for it, it will be adopted.

AT THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The republican senators met in caucus soon after the adjournment of the senate. The proposition to select Senator David Davis as a candidate to displace Bayard as president pro tem. was at once considered. A long discussion ensued and some opposition to it was manifested, but it was finally agreed to by a decided majority. A resolution proposing the election of a successor to Bayard will probably be introduced to-morrow, then under the rule a single objection, which will be forthcoming, will postpone the consideration for one day and there is likely to be a contest till Friday.

THE CABINET OFFICERS.

WASHINGTON, October 12. In consequence of earnest appeals Postmaster General James is to remain in the cabinet until after the Star route trials. It is not improbable that Windom may hold on until December also, so that when James goes Arthur can succeed Windom by a New York appointment. If James goes now the president will feel obliged to choose Windom's successor outside of New York.

CABINET SPECULATION.

There is much speculation with regard to the cabinet changes. Secretary Windom was asked if his visit to the president had any connection with his retirement. He replied it had not, and that no official communication on the subject had yet reached him. Judge Folger and ex-Governor Morgan, both of New York, continue to be most prominently mentioned with the succession. There appears to be a deepening impression that with the exception of changes in the treasury department and the department of justice the present executive officers will continue until December.

IT IS PRETTY WELL SETTLED

that Windom's successor will be named at this session of the senate. There is every reason to conclude that it will be Judge Folger of New York. Windom informed the president to-day that he could make the appointment as early as he pleased without in any way discommoding the present secretary. Windom said he had the affairs of the treasury in such a shape that he could retire at any time with justice to himself and that he is willing to retire early. Windom is really anxious to leave the cabinet and look after his senatorial election.

Republican senators who have talked with the president say that all of the new cabinet will be nominated before the close of the present session of the senate.

BLAINE IS DESIROUS

of being freed from the state department as he says he has large business arrangements in view which he wants to take hold of. Talking to a party of friends Blaine said he was glad of an opportunity for once to be entirely released of all official responsibilities, and said he believed office holding had hampered him hitherto and he rejoiced at the prospect of future freedom from duty to the public. He proposes to engage largely in business enterprises.

ARTHUR'S DANGER AGAIN.

NEW YORK, October 12. The Times and Tribune favor the suggestion to elect Davis president of the senate. The Tribune says if it is true, as Judge Davis will not deny, that the present situation places the peace of the country in peril by inviting any reckless and desperate man to change the administration through the use of the pistol, it is the duty of the senate to end that state of things.

THE YORKTOWN CELEBRATION.

The president and cabinet leave for Yorktown Thursday next. The French guests started Monday visiting Mt. Vernon on the way. Admiral Porter goes down to-morrow to arrange the naval programme. The diplomatic corps will be presented to President Arthur to-morrow.

OUT CALLING.

To-day Secretary Kirkwood and the heads of the bureaus of the interior department paid their respects to Secretaries Blaine and Windom; and Postmaster General James conferred with the president early this afternoon on the subject of certain minor appointments which need to be made, and a number of senators called.

BONDS FOR REDEMPTION.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—Up to noon there has been about $350,000 three and a half per cent. bonds received for redemption under notice to redeem $5,000,000 bonds embodied in the 105th call. Should there be more than $5,000,000 bonds offered it is quite probable that redemption will be made pro rata.

Dr. J. G. Holland Dead.

NEW YORK, October 12. J. G. Holland, the poet, died suddenly this morning.

[Josiah Gilbert Holland was born in Belchertown, Mass., July 24, 1819. He studied medicine and practiced for three years, and afterward edited a literary journal for a few months in Springfield, Mass. In May, 1849, he became associate editor of the "Springfield Republican" and afterward one of the proprietors of that journal. He remained on the paper until 1853. In 1870 he associated himself with "Scribner's Monthly," and became its editor, holding the position to the day of his death.

He has for years been a public lecturer and a well-known author and poet. Under the nom de plume of "Timothy Titcomb" he wrote many books and the series includes "Letters to the Young" (1858), "Gold Foil" (1859), and "Lessons in Life" (1861). Among his other publications are "History of Western Massachusetts," "The Bay Path," "Life of Abraham Lincoln," "Katrina," a poem, "Bitter Sweet" and "Arthur Bonnicastle."—ED.]

THE ELECTIONS.

Later Reports From Ohio and Iowa.

Confirm the Republican Victories.

The Iowa Election.

DES MOINES, Ia., October 12.—The city of Des Moines' complete returns give Sherman 1,954, Kinne 902, Clark 200; Sherman's majority over Kinne 1,052; over all 846. In Park county the republican majority is about 1,600, and the whole republican county ticket is elected. Up to this hour the republican state committee and the State Register have reports from thirty-eight counties, some of the counties nearly in full. These returns give Sherman, republican candidate for governor, 5,879 majority over Kinne, the democrat. Last year the same counties gave Garfield 8,581 majority. The same relative vote over the state will give Sherman a majority of between 50,000 and 55,000 over the democrats, and a majority of 35,000 overall. The reports indicate a majority of 90 in the legislature. The senate will be more strongly republican than in 1879; as there is a gain of one in Dubuque and one in Lee, and possibly one in Keokuk. There have been fewer republican losses on account of the prohibitory amendment than were expected. The tickets are badly scratched in the city and county. Returns are late and it is impossible to give figures to-night, but enough is known to assure the election of H. W. Rothert, republican, to the state senate, John N. Irwin, republican, to the house and the election of nearly the entire republican county ticket. Lee county usually gives 300 to 500 democratic majority.

SHOWING STILL GOOD.

CHICAGO, October 12.—A Des Moines despatch says that Sherman has 50,000 majority. A republican is elected in Webster county for the first time in twelve years. A republican senator is elected in Dubuque, and a senator and representative elected to the republicans in Lee county. The entire republican ticket is elected in Polk county, and the republican majority in the legislature will be 90.

DES MOINES, October 12.—Up to this hour the State Register has full returns from 68 of the 99 counties of the state, which give Sherwin a net majority of 34,500. Partial returns from the remaining counties indicate the total majority will be between 48,000 and 50,000. The democrats concede 40,000 majority. The Register's returns of the legislature give the republicans 44 of the 50 senators, and 78 of the 99 representatives. The republicans gain a senator in each of the counties of Dubuque, Wapello, Lee and Keokuk and lose one in Des Moines. The republicans lose one representative in Scott, two in Des Moines county, two in Clinton, one in Harrison and one in Chickasaw, and gain one in Webster, one in Appanoose, one in Lee, one in Keokuk. In Pottawatomie county the republicans elect one representative and one (Clayton) is in doubt. The greenback vote in the state has fallen off fifty per cent since last year.

The Ohio Election.

CINCINNATI, October 12.—The republicans claim that Foster is elected by 10,000 to 15,000 in the state, and claim a majority in the house of representatives. The democrats concede Foster 10,000, and say the complexion of the state general assembly is doubtful and will depend entirely on the result in Hamilton county.

Cincinnati for many years has been noted for the amount of scratching done on both tickets, but never in the history of elections were tickets on both sides scratched as much as they were yesterday.

The temperance vote in the state disappointed the expectations of its friends and opponents by its smallness. The local ticket in Hamilton is mixed. At 11 this morning figures cannot be given.

CINCINNATI, October 12.—From Hamilton county five country and nineteen city precincts give Foster 8,000 majority. In the local ticket the democrats will probably elect a treasurer, probate judge and three of the five common pleas judges. For the senate and house of representatives the race looks even. The republicans seem to have five members of the county board of control and one county commissioner. Langworth, republican, for supreme judge, leads his ticket several hundred.

SINGULAR FEATURE.

A feature of the election in the democratic gains in republican counties and vice versa. This is attributed to the fact that in several of the republican counties the church and temperance parties are very strong. The republicans scratched Foster on account of the failure of the legislature last winter to give additional liquor legislation. The legislature attempted to give this legislation but could not agree on account of the variety of plans offered. Foster's gain in democratic counties offsetting the loss in republican counties is attributed to Bookwalter's brief connection with the democratic party.

FOSTER'S MAJORITY.

COLUMBUS, October 12.—Returns since noon have been meagre and very little has been learned of the result. Foster believes that his majority will reach 20,000. It is believed that Jamison Hall, republican, is elected senator from Miami, a dark district, which will give the republicans a majority in the senate.

The Denver Primaries.

DENVER, October 12.—The republican city primaries were held to-night. The result as to mayor cannot be definitely ascertained, as many of the delegates elected decline to state their preference, but Morris, a member of the present city council, is supposed to have a majority with J. L. Bailey close behind him. Some good judges predict that a dark horse will be nominated.

GUITEAU.

Butler Declines to Act as His Counsel.

GUITEAU'S COUNSEL TALES.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—Scoville, brother-in-law and counsel of Guiteau, was in court this morning and said he had no notice or information as to when the arraignment of Guiteau was to take place, and that he had not yet received any answer from General Butler as to whether he would act as counsel for the defense. The statement already published as to Merrick's expressing a willingness to argue the question of jurisdiction if raised is correct, and he has been advised by distinguished lawyers all over the country, including several judges, to raise every question and make every point that can be properly made on behalf of the client. He (Scoville) has no apprehension of personal violence being offered the prisoner on his way to or from the court.

BUTLER DECLINES.

The following dispatch was received here to-day:

BOSTON, October 12.—In reply to your telegram I will state that I have had no application from Scoville or anybody else to defend Guiteau, and I hope I shall not, as imperative legal engagements preclude the possibility of my accepting a retainer for so long a trial as this must be, however large; but I always feel grieved to be obliged to refuse my services to any man whose life is at stake in the proceedings of court.

THE ALBANY CONVENTION.

E. Brooks Chosen Chairman The Platform Adopted.

ALBANY, October 12.—The convention was called to order at 10.30, and the committee on contested seats reported, when a decision in favor of the New York county democracy was announced. There was some cheering. The report was unanimously carried. Honorable E. Brooks was unanimously chosen permanent chairman and addressed the convention. At the conclusion of the address the secretary read the resolutions. The platform adopted reaffirms fidelity to the democratic principles as set forth by the national convention, and denounces the fraud of 1876, whereby the people were defrauded of the fruits of their victory. It declares that reform is still necessary; that the continued disclosures of new plundering of the people's funds by inner rings in the treasury, postoffice and interior departments demonstrate that reform is more than ever a necessity and demands a thorough investigation of these frauds. The assassination of the late president is deplored in all its public and private aspects, and heartfelt sympathy for his family is expressed.

The platform favors hard money, denounces the republican support of the repudiation parties in Virginia, Minnesota, Mississippi and other states. The republican legislature of New York is also denounced for its corruption and dishonesty.

The resolution was adopted without dissent and the nominations were proceeded with.

Brooks in his address deplored the death of Garfield at the hand of an assassin. He referred feelingly to the death of the president.

Referring to the election of 1876, he said: "It becomes the democratic voters of this state neither to forget the past nor to forget the offense which practically disfranchised two states and thousands of American citizens in order to make a man president who had received neither the constitutional vote nor the first election." Brooks spoke in advocacy of honest elections, honest officials, honest money, free ships and tariff for the revenue, affording liberal protection to every great interest. He denounced the greed of corporations.

The following ticket was nominated: For secretary of state, Wm. Purcell; for comptroller, Geo. H. Lapham; for attorney-general, R. A. Parmenter; for treasurer, Robt. A. Maxwell; for state engineer, Thomas Evans; for judge of the court of appeals, ex-Attorney-General Schoonmaker. After the usual vote of thanks the convention adjourned sine die.

Tunisian Troubles.

TUNIS, October 12. Two more railway stations are burned. Letters of independent correspondents confirm the statement that what has really delayed the advance on Kairwan is the fact that the arrangement by which Ali Bey's troops were to protect the railway and preserve order in the north, while the French chastised the rebels in the southern part of the regency proved utterly futile.

A Run on a Bank.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 12. A small run on the German Savings bank, owing to statements made by William Hallis, the insolvent president of the real estate association, that the bank was not secured on his indebtedness to it. Officers of the bank deny Hallis' statement and make light of the run, which they say is confined to small depositors. The bank commissioner reported favorably on the bank two weeks ago.

Irish Affairs.

DUBLIN, October 12.—A conference of Irish liberals is arranging to be held here for the purpose of considering the best means of supporting the government in carrying out the land act and obtaining obedience to the law in view of Gladstone's appeal for the support of loyal Irishmen. The land league of county Meath has resolved not to permit hunting this season. It will be remembered that the empress of Austria has intended to hunt in the county this winter.

COLORADO COLLEGE

What Has Transpired at Our Seat of Learning During the Past Week.

Boarding School Statistics Notes on the Societies and Personal Mention.

Next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock the students will meet in the college chapel for the purpose of discussing the question, "Ought the method of appointment to office under our government to be radically changed?" Professor Sheldon will be in charge of the exercise. Messrs. Halleck, H. H. Seldomridge and Owen and Miss Doak have been appointed to lead the debate.

The Philocallians went off on a geological expedition last Friday afternoon instead of doing any society business.

The other two literary societies held their usual Friday evening meetings. The Phi Delta Pi had a poor question—"Whether nature or art pleases the eye most." How it was handled I cannot say. If Dean Swift could be eloquent about a broomstick, why should not Phi Delta Pi eloquence rise superior to such a disadvantage as that of which I have spoken? At the next meeting the following question will be debated: Resolved, that woman has more influence over man than money. I presume that the word "money" is in the nominative case as subject of a verb understood, and not governed by the preposition "over" to be supplied. The debates are not of course the only exercises of the society.

The Colorado College Literary Society—the days of this cumbersome name are probably drawing to a close—had two select readings, a declamation and two essays, besides the debate, in which only three members took part, on the subject that I spoke of last week. Next time there will be a reading, an essay, an oration, a debate and a criticism.

The question is—Should the Study of the Natural Sciences Supersede the Study of Latin and Greek in our Colleges?"

The name, "The Colorado College Literary Society," has not been very satisfactory to the members of the organization, and they have been casting about for a new name. A meeting of members—not a meeting of the society—was held after last Friday's college session to consider the matter. There was no agreement, and a committee of five was appointed to suggest three names. The committee was considered rather discordant, and it was thought that if the committee could agree the society could. The committee did agree, and the five members united in a notice to amend the constitution by changing the name to "The Occidental Club." The subject will come up at the next meeting.

Five candidates for membership in the new society have been proposed, the president and another member of the Phi Delta Pi, a member who unites in himself five elective positions being of the number.

The Phi Delta Pi intend considering the advisability of adjourning for the term. Among other reasons, that one which, according to Milton's Paradise Lost, led Adam to give up Eden, which, in every land and through the ages, has, like a cable of steel, drawn the sons of men, that old, old reason of men, to every generation new, seems exerting its influence towards the disintegration of that society which has no place for the girls. But the constitution is harsher than those whom it governs.

The value of a young man who belongs to the C. C. L. may be estimated under three heads: first, good behavior; second, willingness to do a fair share of the literary labor; and third, willingness to see that the young ladies shall have opportunity to attend. The president of the old society has already proven himself as to the third qualification. But from the standpoint of his companions he may seem to be giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

The executive committee of the C. C. L. has organized by electing Mr. Owen chairman and Miss Rowe clerk.

Seven young ladies and two young men were present at the college union Saturday evening. A list of subjects presented by Professor Marden was agreed to.

There is now a class in Spanish, but it contains thus far but two members.

Mr. George L. Smith, last year a student, or, more properly, the student in the Cutler Training school and for a time a teacher in the preparatory department of the college, was ordained to the ministry at the recent meeting of the Congregational association. He has charge of a church in Wyoming.

Mr. George F. Owen is sick this week. It is even feared that he will be obliged to give up school. Both students and teachers would be sorry to lose him.

Last Tuesday a careful account was made of the boarding club's expenses for the first two weeks. It was found that the cost of board was $3.13 a week. If the expense can be shared among eight, the cost of board can be kept down to $3.

The banner on Mount Garfield was still flying Thursday morning.

The college is improved to the extent of a new library desk.

Last year the opening exercises were almost exclusively conducted by Professor Sheldon. This year Professor Marden usually conducts them, although Professor Sheldon has conducted them a few times, and Mr. Bacon once. Miss Mosier plays the piano, Mr. Bacon leads the singing, and indeed he and Mr. Marden do most of it.

Mr. Tenney is building a house near the college and rejoices in the possession of a mule team.

Mr. Bower, the newest addition to the boarding club, is in the president's employ for a year.

There is in human nature more or less a tendency to exaggeration, and it was this tendency probably which led a young lady who is known to be of a kind and loving disposition to say that the author of Loud's geometry ought to be hung.

Mr. H. H. Seldomridge is fond of foot-ball, and consequently he is lame in one of his feet.

POISONOUS RABBITS.

Their Bite as Venomous as that of a Rattlesnake.

It was said among the Pottawattamie Indians who inhabit the northern peninsula of Michigan, that the bite of certain species of rabbit known in that locality, was venomous, but never until yesterday did we learn that the bite of the jack rabbits which are so numerous on the Colorado plains was considered poisonous. The lamb and the rabbit have always been looked upon as being the two most harmless creatures in existence.

Major Jim Otis, who came in from his ranch on Horse creek, relates a story which we have every reason to believe. Marvelous as it may seem Mr. Otis says that on September 22d, he was bitten by a rabbit in the fleshy part of the thumb, from the effects of which he has not yet fully recovered.

For two weeks after receiving the bite his life was despaired of, but owing to the constant and proficient attention of Dr. Hodges, of Hugo, he was saved. According to Mr. Otis' story he was engaged in constructing a fence about his corral, and as he was lifting a post from an adjoining pile a rabbit sprang from beneath and ran into a shed a short distance away. As the major had on several occasions promised his little boy that he would get him a live rabbit he followed the animal to the shed in hopes of catching him. He succeeded in cornering the rabbit in the shed, and while attempting to catch him received the wound which came near resulting so disastrously. He noticed that the skin on his thumb was broken, but did not give it further thought until about an hour afterward when his hand began to swell and pain him. The flesh about the wound became very much inflamed and somewhat resembled the sting of a bee or wasp. The swelling continued to increase and communicate with other parts of the body. All this time Mr. Otis was suffering the most intense agony. Numerous antidotes were tried but nothing seemed to relieve his suffering. Dr. Hodges was summoned from Hugo and before being told what had occurred pronounced the case one of poisoning. The doctor was of the opinion that Mr. Otis had been bitten by a rattlesnake and at first positively refused to listen to or place any faith in the story about the rabbit bite.

Nothing that he administered in the least alleviated his patient's pain, and the doctor was at a loss to know what to do. For over two weeks Mr. Otis was a great sufferer, and at times in a very critical condition. The doctor finally became convinced that the story as told him about the rabbit bite was a plausible one. To fully satisfy himself he had several rabbits caught with which he experimented. He found that the upper jaw of the rabbit contained a hollow tooth or fang from which he extracted a most venomous fluid. He afterward ascertained that two drops of this fluid administered to a lamb would kill it in less than one hour.

OFFICIAL OPINION.

How the Vote on the Capital Question are to be Cast.

County Clerk Eaton yesterday received from Secretary of State Meldrum the following opinion on the manner in which the ballots for the capital are to be cast as given by Attorney General Charles H. Toll:

Section three of the act passed by the last general assembly entitled "An act to provide for submitting the question of the permanent location of the seat of government," etc., provides that all persons voting on said question shall vote by separate ballot.

The effect of this provision is to prohibit any qualified elector, voting upon the question, from attaching his ballot upon this question to any ballot which he may cast for the election of any officer or officers, at the same election. The ballot upon this question must be separate and cannot be counted if made a part of the ballot cast for the election of officers.

I may add that it is not necessary, as has been suggested, that a special board of judges of election should be appointed, nor is the appointment of special clerks for the entry of the name of the voter and the number of his vote upon this question, requisite. A separate ballot box should, however, be provided for each precinct by the board of county commissioners of each county for the reception of votes cast upon this question, and the judges of election should deposit in such separate ballot box all ballots cast upon the question of a permanent location of the seat of government and no others. The ballots cast upon this question should be numbered in the order in which they are received, as is provided by the general laws in reference to votes cast upon the election of officers and the clerks of the board of judges of election should so register such ballots. Very respectfully,

CHAS. H. TOLL, Attorney General.

An Address to the Voters of Colorado.

Under a provision of the constitution of the state of Colorado, the legal voters of the commonwealth will be called upon to select a site for the permanent location of the state capital at the general election in November next. It is also provided that should no place receive a majority of all the votes cast at said election, then the people shall at the next general election, a year later, decide between the two places receiving the highest number of votes at the first election.

The subject is one that clearly challenges the thoughtful consideration of every voter in Colorado. The convenience and safety of our people for all future time depends, perhaps, very much more upon the exercise of a wise judgment in the settlement of the question under consideration than most voters may upon first thought conceive.

What requisites or qualifications should a town possess to justify its selection as a site for the state capital? It should be located as near as possible to the center of the state; it should be accessible to the people of all sections of the state; it should be removed from the corrupting and distracting influences of large cities; it should be healthful, well-located and attractive, a fit representative of our beautiful state, and it should be able to furnish accommodations for not only such public officials as are necessarily compelled to live at the state capital, but for the members of the legislature, and all who are occasionally called to visit the capital on business.

Colorado Springs possesses these requisites in an eminent degree. Located close to the base of the mountains, at the foot of Pike's Peak, only ten miles south of the center of the state from north to south, and thirty miles from its geographical center, it certainly satisfies the almost universal demand that the capital of the state should be near its center.

No town in the state is so accessible to the people of all sections. Its situation on the main line of the great connecting link that unites the railroad system of the north to that of the south, and on the elected line of railroad, in process of construction, fast approaching the city on the east and west, enables it to fully comply with this important condition.

It is almost unnecessary to speak of its healthfulness and the beauty of its situation. It is generally acknowledged to be the most healthful spot in a state noted for the salubrity of its climate. Hundreds of the citizens of Denver, Pueblo, Leadville and other towns, come hither to enjoy its prospects, but to escape the cold of winter and the heat of summer, the extremes of which are seldom felt here.

Colorado Springs is essentially a city of homes. It neither aspires nor expects to become a great commercial or manufacturing center like Denver in the north, or Pueblo in the south, and for this reason seems peculiarly fitted for the capital of the state. The people of the nation, and the several states, with very few exceptions, have carefully avoided locating their capitals in large and busy centers, the corrupting influences of which would certainly exercise a baneful effect upon legislation. So generally has this custom prevailed that it now has the force of established precedent. New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, have frequently tried to become the seats of government of their respective states, but their aspirations have invariably been defeated by a wise and considerate people. The thoughtful consideration of every voter in Colorado is called to this important point.

The Colorado Springs company has set apart a tract of ground ten acres in extent, on the beautiful plateau in front of the very center of the town, which will be donated to the state should the capital be located here. No more beautiful nor suitable grounds for a capitol building can be found in the state.

Adjoining the grounds donated to the state for capitol purposes there is now being erected one of the largest and most elegant hotels in the state, which with the other hotels and many large boarding houses in the city, will furnish the best and most ample accommodations for all who may have occasion to live in, or visit, the state capital.

To the other advantages above enumerated may be added, freedom from mud in winter and dust in summer, magnificent streets, parks and shade trees; good gas; an ample supply of the purest water; excellent educational institutions, and proximity to the celebrated mineral springs at Manitou.

Owing to its central location, the selection of Colorado Springs, should, and doubtless will, be a powerful agency in abolishing the sectional feeling that has always existed between the northern and southern portions of the state, and which has so frequently threatened to destroy the homogeneity of interests and fraternal feelings that should characterize the people of the great commonwealth of Colorado.

In conclusion, we respectfully urge upon our fellow-voters to abstain from throwing away their votes upon localities that have no chance of success. No mere temporary local interest should be considered at this time, for the question now submitted to the calm judgment of the people is one of more vital importance to the state at large than to any particular city or locality.

The statement of the Western National Bank, of South Pueblo, for October first shows the remarkable prosperity of that city. This bank began business August 15. As a result of this six weeks' business, the statement of October first showed deposits amounting to $148,000.

There never was so much building going on in the state as now. Our hardware merchants find it impossible to get a sufficient quantity of nails to meet the demand. Yesterday it was found impossible to buy in the state any quantity of tenpenny nails.

THE ELECTION.

The result of the election in Ohio is now known. Governor Foster is re-elected by a reduced majority and a republican legislature is elected. This result is highly satisfactory as this is the off year in which the republicans are usually defeated. The election for governor always occurs on the uneven years. The elections have gone half of the time republican and half of the time democratic. This was the democratic turn. The republicans have usually carried the election for the year before the presidential contest as in 1871, 1875 and 1879. In the two latter years the contest was extremely close but the republicans won. The election the year following the presidential election has usually been dull and the democrats have won as in 1878 when Allen was elected, and 1877 when Bishop was elected. This was therefore their turn. The fact that the republicans have carried Ohio this year places it in the list of surely republican states. The republican party has now carried Ohio for four successive years, and has been defeated only once in seven years. This is the best seven years record the republican party has had in Ohio. The chances for the election of the democratic candidate were unusually good, as the republicans had not only to contend with indifference, but with the prohibition and liquor interests. The election of the legislature has no special significance as no United States senator will be elected by it. The next vacancy will be that of Senator Pendleton, which will occur March 4, 1885. In 1883 the legislature will be elected which elects his successor. The only advantage the democracy would have by carrying the legislature would be the opportunity to re-district the state so that more democratic representatives could be elected to congress. This was done in 1877-78, so that the republicans, though carrying the state, had only eight of the twelve representatives. This cannot be done this year.

The results in Iowa are always monotonous. In 1878 the greenbackers elected two candidates to congress, but this is the only reverse the party has had in years. The republicans seem to have done better than usual. Gains were made in the legislature and the republicans have 50,000 majority. This is a greater majority than the party has had since 1876. The elections therefore indicate the republicans are not only holding their own but gaining.

It is a settled fact that Secretary Windom will go back to the senate. Senator Edgerton who was appointed as Windom's successor is an old and faithful friend of Windom. He notified Windom immediately after the shooting of Garfield that he should resign and that he (Windom) should go back to the senate, as he could best serve his state. Windom asked that the matter rest for a while. After Garfield's death Edgerton renewed his proposition and it was favorably received. Mr. Windom may remain in the cabinet until December, but will probably then return to the senate by appointment of the governor and on the meeting of the legislature will be regularly elected.

Peter Becker obtained the democratic nomination for sheriff in Lake county on Tuesday. This news will be received with pleasure by his friends here. Mr. Becker was twice elected sheriff of this county as a democrat, though the county was republican, which shows the esteem in which he was held here. He was a brave, honest officer. If there is any failure to elect the entire republican ticket in Lake this fall, we trust that Mr. Becker will get in.

The Leadville Herald thinks Mr. Conkling "can be great if he will, but by continually pressing himself forward upon an unwilling party he only exhibits the weaknesses common to humanity." The Herald occasionally sees things as they are.

Mr. Tilden still poses before the country. In a letter written October 3d, he speaks of his reform labors and his sacrifices for the public weal. His cant grows with his increasing years.

We publish on this page an editorial review of President Garfield's case from the Medical News. As this is the highest medical authority in the country, it will be read with interest.

JOSIAH GILBERT HOLLAND.

Doctor Holland, as he was generally known, died suddenly in New York yesterday. The announcement will be received with regret by the literary world, of which he was for so long a conspicuous member, and with sincere sorrow by those who were personally acquainted with him.

Doctor Holland was essentially and purely a literary man. At the beginning of his life he was tempted to follow a professional life, but after three years of medical practice he entered upon a literary career, and to the day of his death continued his literary and editorial duties. We publish elsewhere a brief history of his life, and mention a few of the very many works of which he was the author. These novels, histories and poems show him to have been a versatile writer, and the fact that from his literary labors he acquired an independent fortune, proves him to have been a popular author as well. There was that about his writings, and especially his poems which caught the popular fancy and gained for the author a wide popularity. There has always been a demand for his works, and whatever fault may be found with his literary style, and however much the subject matter may be criticised Dr. Holland will still be remembered as one who wrote successfully and who had at the time of his death more admirers and more followers than many another writer who produced works far superior to his both in literary style and intrinsic worth. It has often been considered remarkable that Doctor Holland should enjoy such universal popularity when there was so much in his writings to criticise, but it was because he was possessed in an eminent degree of that rare power of tickling the popular fancy that he became and continued to be an editor, poet, novelist and lecturer with a large and enthusiastic following.

For the past ten years Dr. Holland has been the editor of Scribner's Magazine. In this field he has been popular and successful and has with the aid of his liberal partner and co-laborer, Roswell Smith, brought the magazine prominently forward and has given it a place in the literary and artistic world which it could not have reached had there not been in its editor some literary force and ability. Although surrounded by distinguished assistants who have done much to gain for Scribner its present position, still Doctor Holland was the real and actual head and deserves full praise for the labors he performed and the ends he accomplished. In his editorial contributions to the Magazine he was at all times a conscientious writer upon the topics of the day, and especially in the cause of temperance, and in favor of what was true, honest and manly. For political purity, against shams and conceits, his pen was always active and through all the articles run evidences that the writer himself was a man who believed in and practiced what he thought.

And this was true. In private life Doctor Holland was what he wanted others to be, temperate, honest, manly and lovable. Whoever has stood in his presence, and has conversed with him could not help being impressed with the fact that he was a good man. This may be considered praise enough; but he was not simply good himself, he helped others to be so too. He advised the young, and encouraged them, and many an aspirant for literary fame has gone from Doctor Holland's office convinced that there was no cant in the nature of the successful man who had talked with him concerning the duties of life. It is not unlikely that one of the great reasons why Doctor Holland has been so successful is that he wrote as he felt, and that the public recognized the fact. His novels, perhaps, may be criticised as having too much of almost impossible goodness in their heroes and heroines, but the writer was earnest in desiring a higher standard of morality in society, and may be excused for painting his characters, too strongly, when it is remembered that he himself lived up to his high ideas. His words will be missed and so will his example.

Petered Out San Juan.

Solid Muldoon.

The revised edition teaches us that when one eye is blacked to turn the other for like treatment, this mode of revenge might have gratified the animosities of those bleeded old apostles who divided their time between making mashes and angling for miracles. But when "Petered out San Juan" gets a black eye she most generally always sometimes devotes the unblacked optic to the glorious work of getting even. Dainddenver.

MEDICAL NEWS.

The Case of President Garfield.

The publication in the current number of the American Journal of the Medical Sciences of the official report of the autopsy upon the body of President Garfield will, we trust, while satisfying the legitimate curiosity of the profession and of the laity, at the same time effectually and permanently quiet the unfriendly criticism of the surgical treatment of the case, in which part of the daily press has so freely indulged, and from which, we regret to observe, some medical journals without full knowledge of the case have not thought proper to abstain. The discoveries of the autopsy, taken in conjunction with what is known of the clinical history, will at once make apparent to the profession the good good common sense, admirable conservatism, and sound surgical judgment which have characterized the management of the case from first to last, and, although the non-medical mind may be slower to comprehend the questions at issue, it will not be long before the same conviction forces itself upon the people at large.

We know now beyond the possibility of doubt that no human skill could have averted the fatal result, but we find moreover that, even in the searching light of the careful and thorough post-mortem examination, it is difficult, if not impossible, to suggest any modification of the treatment even in minor points, which would have made it better adapted to the exigencies of the case.

Directly after the shooting, the symptoms of impending collapse, so severe as to threaten immediate dissolution, and possibly, in the absence of hemorrhage, depending largely upon spinal concussion and mental shock, received, as was proper, the greatest attention.

Later in the day, after reaction had been established, a cautious examination with a probe and with a fore finger disclosed the fact that the eleventh rib had been struck and broken, and that the ball had passed onward into the abdominal cavity. In accordance with one of the best-established rules of surgery, further exploration was desisted from, and two days later, at the time of the first consultation, the same praiseworthy conservatism was observed in spite of the senseless clamour for the extraction of the ball which was already being raised, and which, to their shame, be it said, was aided and encouraged by a few prominent members of the profession who had possessed neither the details nor a personal knowledge of the case. Although, at that time, the surgeons were governed by general principles, and were necessarily ignorant of the course and situation of the ball, the wisdom of their inactivity has been made clear by the disclosures of the autopsy, and we can all recognize now that an operation for extraction would have been not only fruitless, but almost certainly fatal, while, on the other hand, it is shown that the ball itself, after effecting its lodgment had ceased to be a factor in the production of disease. We know also, that, as it had passed through the fibres of the psoas muscle, which, running longitudinally by the side of the spine, had closed over it, persistent probing would only have been productive of increased laceration of the parts with no possibility of the discovery of the track of the ball.

It seems not improper to say in this connection that weeks ago, when the daily press was filled with fictitious accounts of the exact situation of the ball, and of certain imaginary movements which it had made, Dr. Agnew, who, doubtless, in this, as in other matters, represented accurately the sentiment of the surgical staff, assured us that he did not know the position of the ball, and knew of no safe means of determining it.

The vomiting immediately after the accident, and the temporary retention of urine were common symptoms of shock, and received all the attention they required; so, too, the pains in the feet and ankles and the cerebral hyperæsthesia—both possible results of nerve-injury of or concussion of the spine—called for no special treatment, and subsided, together with the abdominal tympany in from one to two weeks. At no time was there any loss of muscular power. The rigors which recently about the end of July were immediately associated, in the first instance, with the formation of a small abscess under the erector spinæ muscles, possibly caused by the irritation of fragments of the broken rib, and next, with the obstruction of the outlet from this cavity by one of these fragments. A free incision in the one case, and removal of the spicula of bone in the second, caused an immediate cessation of the chills, followed by subsidence of the temperature. It seems probable that about this time the blood received its first septic impression; but this is not to be wondered at when we recall the fact that suppuration occurring in this region is rarely circumscribed, the pus, owing to the scanty amount of connective tissue and to the presence of loose masses of fat, finding its way freely through the surrounding parts, and thus affording the best possible condition for decomposition and for the absorption of poisonous matters. When, too, we remember the laceration of the cancellated structure of the first lumbar vertebra, it seems rather remarkable that these symptoms did not make their appearance earlier, and the injustice of attributing them to improper or insufficient treatment becomes evident.

The discovery of a point of induration in the right iliac fossa, and the fact that a small flexible catheter could be carried downward from the wound in that direction for several inches, led very naturally to the harmless belief that this was probably the original track of the ball; but, while the autopsy shows that this was not the case, it also develops the fact that the wound proper was thoroughly drained through this channel, and that the operation of August 8th, which, by an opening below the twelfth rib and directly through the quadratus lumborum muscle, effectually drained the space between that muscle and the peritoneum, and, indeed, the whole iliac and lumbar regions, also aided in carrying away the products of suppuration from the neighborhood of the wounded vertebra.

The drainage of the long narrow passage into the iliac fossa by a counter-opening at its lower extremity, which it has been asserted was an indication not met by the surgeons, would have necessitated an abdominal section, displacement of the viscera, and division of the posterior layer of the peritoneum, and would have resulted in absolutely no benefit, as in the recumbent position the pus would have continued to gravitate towards the opening in the lumbar region, as it did throughout the entire case.

The fact that drainage was thorough and complete, and that no portion of the unfavorable symptoms was due to neglect in this respect, is finally and fully established by the circumstance that no accumulations of pus were found at the autopsy, either along the track of the ball or in the passage caused by the burrowing of the pus. There was no time previous to the first operation at which the accumulated pus did not pass out of the original wound, but its exit was favored by gravitation after the two operations which brought the external opening on a lower level, and enabled them not only to drain completely the iliac and lumbar regions, but also to carry away any discharge that may have come from the fractured vertebra.

Throughout the whole treatment antisepsis was employed to the fullest possible extent, although a more unfavorable case in which to obtain its peculiar benefits could hardly be imagined.

The irritable stomach, a relic of old dyspeptic troubles, the patellitis, a not uncommon accompaniment of exhausting fevers, the bronchitis and bronchopneumonia, partly the results of recumbency and partly of the septic state of the blood, were the subsequent complications through which the president was, being so skillfully and we might say, successfully carried, when the ulceration of the splenic artery, a slowly developing result of inflammation extending from the continuous track of the ball, terminated the case: the rigors preceding death being doubtless due to successive hemorrhages which are indicated by the lamination of the blood-clot found in the peritoneal cavity. The edges of the ulceration in the splenic artery were adherent to the posterior surface of the peritoneum. It will be seen that no metastatic abscesses were discovered, the only accumulations of pus which were found being a cavity on the under surface of the liver which may have been a result of contusion by the broken rib at the time of the injury, and at any rate did not communicate with the wound, and another, one-third of an inch in diameter, just beneath the capsule of the left kidney. With the exception of the moderate broncho-pneumonia the viscera were free from all acute pathological changes.

From this general consideration of the history of the case, viewed in the light thrown upon it by the details of the autopsy, we may safely conclude:

1st. That the treatment at the time of the reception of the injury, and immediately subsequent to it, was that rendered proper by the condition of collapse which then existed.

2d. That on reaction taking place, a sufficiently thorough and careful examination was made with the finger and the probe.

3d. That when the consulting surgeons were called in, and found that this had been done, they very properly, and in accordance with well established and universally recognized rules of surgery, refrained from repeating that examination.

4th. That even if these rules had been disregarded, and such examination had been made, it would have determined nothing of practical importance as regards the subsequent treatment.

5th. That wherever pus accumulations had taken place, they were properly opened by free incisions made at the most dependent portions.

6th. That these incisions drained not only the course of the abscess, but communicated freely with that portion of the spine which had been penetrated, and, therefore, with the track of the ball, and the completeness of the drainage is shown by the absence of pus accumulations either in the locality traversed by the ball or in the iliac or lumbar regions.

7th. That the damage done to the cancellated tissue of the lumbar vertebra was sufficient in itself to explain the septic state of the system, which in time, and independent of the ball, which proves to have become harmless, would have destroyed the life of the patient.

If it be thought that these conclusions need to be substantiated by a more detailed acquaintance with the surgical history of the case, it may be said that such a history giving minutely all the particulars of symptoms and treatment is now in process of rapid preparation, and in our opinion will serve to confirm and strengthen the above assertions.

Of the sympathy of the nation and civilized world with the distinguished victim, of the universal respect and affection called forth by his quiet, patient endurance of his sufferings, of the admiration excited by the persistent, almost heroic struggle which he sustained against overwhelming odds, of his watchful and tender nursing, of the thoughtfulness which anticipated everywant and of the ingenuity which devised new appliances for his comfort or his transportation, enough has been written in well-deserved commendation.

But for the one man who took the crushing responsibility of his case, who spared neither time nor labor nor health in conduct, who remained prudent and far-seeing and self-reliant under unjust caloric—light of criticism such as has been directed upon no other physicians in the history of the world, and who have in our opinion reflected credit upon the profession and upheld the reputation of American surgery, there has been written scarcely a word of praise, but oftentimes columns of unmerited censure.

Referring to these wonderful figures the Public says that seventy years ago the value of all the property in this country was less than the recorded payments made in the single week ending October 8th, at the few cities here named. The enormous transactions at some of these cities naturally suggests the idea that a large part of the payments arise from speculation. The settlement of monthly contracts at the chief centers of the speculations evidently counts for much, but the legitimate quarter or half yearly payments of interest, dividends, rentals and the like undoubtedly swell the amount still more, and the volume of legitimate trade is indubitably very large, as the wholesale merchants of this and other cities are well aware. Moreover some ideas of the magnitude of the speculative operations can be found from the recorded sales. Only $30,000,000 would more than cover the nominal value of all the grain sold in this city last week. The contracts included about $45,000,000 and would cover the nominal value of all cash and all option sales of cotton and $10,000,000 more would cover the sales of petroleum and provisions and yet a great part of these transactions involved no payment of money except in deposit of margins. It is evident that the flood of speculation has risen dangerously high but it is also evident that the volume of legitimate trade is much larger than ever before.

IRELAND.

The Landed Proprietors Have Their Sport Stopped.

NEW YORK, October 12.—A Dublin despatch says: The Marquis of Waterford in resigning the mastership of the Curraghmore hounds said he did so because a league had been organized to prevent hunting throughout Ireland. When he was out hunting last Thursday the chapel bells rang, horns were blown and a large multitude of people gathered and stoned him and his friends. They pelted the dogs, stabbed several of them with pitchforks and yelled till they obliged the party to go home.

The Curraghmore is the finest pack of hounds in Ireland. The empress of Austria was to have hunted with them this season. Between 5,000 and 7,000 pounds will be lost to the neighborhood by the break up of the pack. In Kildare the league has given notice that if either the Marquis of Drogheda, the Earl of Mayo, Lord Clancurry, Mr. John La Touche or Mr. William Becker appear in Huntington field hunting they will be stopped. The above named gentlemen are the principal land owners in the county and are constantly resident on their estates.

THE WESTERN UNION MEETING.

New Directors Elected and the Yearly Report Read.

NEW YORK, October 12. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Western Union Telegraph company was held to-day. The following board of directors was elected for the ensuing year: Norvin Green, Thomas T. Eckert, Edwin D. Morgan, John Van Horne, A. B. Cornell, E. J. Sanford, Moses Taylor, Hugh J. Jewett, Frederick L. Ames, Augustus Schell, Harrison Durkee, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Sidney Dillon, James H. Banker, Robert Lenox Kennedy, J. Pierrepont Morgan, Edwin D. Worcester, William D. Bishop. These were all re-elected. The new members elected were as follows: C. P. Huntington, Salmon G. Simmons, E. Winan, George J. Gould, Geo. D. Roberts, S. Sloan, Amasa Stone, Chauncey M. Depew, James W. Clendenny, Cyrus W. Field. Over $60,000,000 of stock was voted.

The following officers of the company were re-elected by the board of directors: President—Norvin Green; vice-presidents—Eckert, Van Horn, Schell, and Durkee. The annual report for the year ending June 30 last shows the receipts to be $14,060,800. After providing for dividends, &c., a surplus of $126,258 remained. President Green closes the report as follows: "The gross earnings of the company for the ensuing year cannot be less than $15,000,000 and the net profits can scarcely fall below $6,500,000. The earnings are now and have been for the first quarter just closed at a rate considerably above the figures named." T. T. Eckert was re-elected general manager.

FOXHALL'S OWNER.

James R. Keene Speaks of the Great Racer.

NEW YORK, October 12.—The Herald says that if Keene and Lorillard imagine that the American people will ever be satisfied until Iroquois and Foxhall meet on the American track they are the most mistaken couple on this terrestrial ball.

Keene was asked yesterday if he would run Foxhall again this season in England and replied: "I have not yet made up my mind. In the coming Cambridgeshire, which is only about half the distance of the Czarowitch, his weight is 112 pounds but as he has incurred the penalty by victory to-day of fourteen pounds rising the imports he will have to carry 128 pounds I am at present dubious as to the advisability of starting him. No three-year-old has ever won the Cambridgeshire with anything approaching the weight Foxhall has to carry." Keene was asked if he would be afraid to pit Foxhall against Iroquois and he said: "Not I. I should not be afraid as to the result if they met at equal weight over any distance."

A Trunk Rifled.

ST. LOUIS, October 12.—L. Rosenfield, a commercial traveller of this city and a passenger on a freight train, placed a sample trunk in a box car. The trunk contained $6,000 worth of jewelry. Reaching Centralia it was missed and going back over the road he found it lying upon the track rifled of $2,000 worth of its contents.

Foxhall Wins.

LONDON, October 12.—Race for select stakes at New Market won by Keene's Foxhall, Triston 2d, Maskelyne 3d. Only these three ran. The race for Middle Park plate, two year olds, was won by Keomess, Lorillard's Gerald second, St. Marguerite, third.

Many of the trees upon our streets are shedding their foliage.

Mr. Charles A. Lee, of the firm of Durkee & Lee, goes east to-day.

Right Eminent Sir M. H. Fitch, deputy grand commander of Colorado, is expected in the city on Saturday.

The Sir Knights of the Pike's Peak commandery are requested to meet in the lodge room on Friday night for drill.

The weather turned exceedingly cold and disagreeable about noon yesterday, and from all indications the equinoctial is at hand.

There is some talk of enlarging the post-office. As it is the office is entirely too small, especially that part allotted to the force.

Seats for "Evangeline" and "La Mascotte" are selling rapidly. The box sheets for both nights are now open at E. P. Howbert & Co.'s.

Mrs. Dr. B. P. Anderson starts this morning via the Santa Fe on a visit to friends in St. Louis. She will remain absent some time.

Ex-Senator Howe, of Wisconsin, whose name is mentioned for a position in President Arthur's cabinet, is at present in Colorado Springs.

The judges of election for the various precincts of El Paso county will meet at their respective polling places on Tuesday, October 18, Tuesday, November 1, and on Monday, November 7.

Several of our citizens who have been in Denver this week attended the production of "Evangeline" by the Rice company in the Tabor Opera house, and they pronounce it an excellent entertainment.

The regular meeting of Pike Peak's Lodge No. 38, I. O. O. F. takes place this evening at 7:30. Members are requested to be present as business of importance will be transacted. Visiting brothers are cordially invited.

Mr. Irving Howbert and wife and Mr. Copeland left for the east via the Santa Fe route yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Howbert will go to New York and Boston, and Mr. Copeland will visit his former home in Vermont.

Mr. Charles Craig, the artist, is still confined to the house with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. It is now about three months since he has been able to use his brush, and he is anxious to once again resume painting.

Messrs. H. A. Wagner, A. F. Goodrich and D. J. Martin started out a prospecting outfit last spring. There was millions in it on the start, but as a result of the season's work they have a poor lone burro. The animal stood in a conspicuous place on Tejon street yesterday with a placard "For Sale" attached to him.

The following grand and petit jurors have been drawn for the next term of the district court which convenes on November 7th. Grand jurors, William Lenner, L. B. Farrar, David Spillman, A. G. Diaper, F. E. Wells, Henry Guire, O. Everhart, J. P. Conlogue, H. Le B. Wills, S. B. Westerfield, S. C. Stout, D. W. Robbins. Petit jurors, E. E. Hooker, Frank Austin, A. G. Brooks, A. L. The Georgia minstrels have telegraphed to Manager Welch of the opera house asking for one night next week. As both the Rice and Buckingham companies are here next week, Mr. Welch concluded that it would not be prudent to fill the date asked for. It is probable that the Georgia minstrels will appear here later in the month.

The Capital Pavement company completed their work yesterday. The pavement is now laid in front of the Opera House, Bennett Bros. and Ainsworth Brown's. It seems to give general satisfaction, and numerous others of our citizens should adopt its use in front of their places of business.

George A. Carpenter is in the city canvassing for the "History of the Two Americas." This book appears to be a valuable reference book, and consists of a collection of some of the best contributions to American history. We shall give a more extended notice of it soon.
